

If a Swimmer Needs to be Reassigned

Swimmer reassignments may occur at any time during the season at the discretion of the coaching staff. The two primary reasons that a swimmer may be reassigned to a new practice group are:

- The coach has decided that the swimmer meets the criteria of another group.
- The coach has decided that the swimmer does not meet the criteria of his/her current group.

Once the coach decides a swimmer is to be reassigned, the following steps will occur:

- The coach of the other group is informed and an agreement is made. The coach of the other group then meets with the swimmer's parents regarding the level of dedication and commitment, policies, and workload of that team.
- Parents must agree that they can meet the financial commitment level of the other group, the additional training time, and practice time/schedule before the athlete is reassigned.
- The athlete is given a trial period to assess the reassignment.
- A transfer form is sent to the Team YES! Treasurer informing him/her of the reassignment. The swimmer's parents are then responsible for paying the new rate of monthly dues.
